Signal processing is a subfield of mathematics, information and electrical engineering that concerns the analysis, synthesis, and modification of signals, which are broadly defined as functions conveying "information about the behavior or attributes of some phenomenon", such as sound, images, and biological measurements. For example, signal processing techniques are used to improve signal ...

An adaptive filter is a system with a linear filter that has a transfer function controlled by variable parameters and a means to adjust those parameters according to an optimization algorithm. Because of the complexity of the optimization algorithms, almost all adaptive filters are digital filters. Adaptive filters are required for some applications because some parameters of the desired ...

Obviously, there are many, many other ways to segment this image. Just find one that robustly gives you a good starting point, and come up with some pre-processing and post-processing routines that allow you to apply your prior knowledge of the images you're analyzing.

Broaden-and-build theory in the workplace. While Broaden-and-build was developed to explain the role of positive emotions in general, the findings can conceivably be applied to organizational behavior in a very practical way.
